Barbara Heath

Her Jeweller to the Last exhibition at the Queensland Art Gallery revealed Barbara Heath as a Jewellery designer adept at transfusing symbolism and legend, ritual and architecture into an object of beauty and meaning. Barbara Heath's references range from the arcane, as in her use of colonial shade patterns and Mashrabiya decorative motifs of geometric and abstract patterns used in Islamic architecture, to her iconic images of running dogs, waves and babies. Represented in major public collections in Australia, including the Queensland Art Gallery and Sydney's Powerhouse Museum, Barbara's Jewels are considered by their lucky owners to be emotional touchstones, created by this most gifted of alchemists. As Barbara says: 'My work as a commission jeweller is intimately connected to ritual – the objects I make are so often the material marker of a rite of passage. These "knots" in the development of a life span are of interest to me, I perceive them as being charged with certain energy.'
